Irregular menstruation is frequently cited as one of the possible side effects of birth control pills. This is likely because some of these pills work by altering the flow of hormones in the female body.

While these alterations normally should not have an effect on a womans menstrual cycle, some more sensitive bodies or some more potent formulas can disrupt the natural flow of the body. Usually, this is accompanied by swelling and sensitivity in the breasts, almost as if the subject was pregnant, as some observers have noted. Again, this is traceable to the effects some birth control pills buy atomoxetine in Australia on the delicate hormonal balance of the female body. There is an effect of protein on your metabolism that scientists have known about for a long time.
